A Typical Hiking Day

- Once the group at the Carma House is assembled, you'll car pool out to the Petro-Canada station at the junction of the Trans-Canada Highway and Highway 22. Here the entire group will meet and sign the Association of Canadian Mountain Guide (ACMG) waiver. The group will then car pool to the trailhead.
- At the trailhead, the facilitators will give a brief introduction to the hike by talking about some risk management matters, leader's capabilities, pace, objectives and meditative hiking. The concept of mindfulness and the process of meditative hiking will also be introduced at this time. Throughout the gentle walk, there will be periodic checks from the leaders to ensure that everyone is doing OK. The pace is such that the group is always reasonably close together and conversation is not impeded by having to catch your breath.
- Along the way, there will be some discussion about interesting aspects of natural history. As well, we will engage in two or three sessions of meditative hiking. These consist of short stretches of walking in silence, during which you are encouraged to be more deeply enmeshed in your moment to moment sensory experience than in outward conversation.
- Lunch is generally held at the hiking objective for the day, but we may stop earlier if the group is hungry. There will also be opportunities to stop for water and snacks along the way. Back at the trailhead, there's a short debrief before heading back home.
- Although the hikes are not difficult, you should look carefully at the individual descriptions to help you determine whether the distance, elevation gain and nature of the terrain are appropriate for your physical condition.

Equipment List

It is important to understand that mountain conditions are often variable. It may be sunny and warm in Calgary, but cool and rainy in the mountains. That's why it's good to be prepared with a bit of extra equipment as outlined in the list below. It's better to have a little extra with you than to be caught unprepared.

- Warm gear: ski hat (toque), sun hat, light gloves/mittens
- Basic clothes: t-shirt, warm shirt, fleece pullover/jacket, rain jacket and pants, hiking pants, shorts
- Footwear: socks, hiking shoes/boots, gaiters
- Day pack: water bottle, sunglasses, sunscreen, toilet paper, food, bug repellent
- Optional gear: collapsible trekking/ski poles, camera and/or binoculars

FAQs: Frequently Asked Questions

1. Can I bring another person along? No. This program is only for members of Wellspring Calgary. Anyone participating in this class has to be a member, register and complete all the paperwork.
2. Can I bring my dog? Park regulations do not always allow for pets. As well, some people are frightened of dogs and conflicts with wildlife or other pets are possible. Please leave your pet at home.

3. What time do we meet for the hikes? 7:30 AM at Carma House or 8:00 AM at the Petro-Canada station at the junction of Highways 1 and 22.
4. What if I have to be home at a certain time? Return times are extremely variable. You may get home later afternoon from some of the hikes that are closer to Calgary, but this may be early evening for ones that are further away. Weather, group pace and unforeseen situations preclude us from guaranteeing a specific return time. If you have an important appointment to make, consider carefully before joining us on the hike.
5. I'm a slow hiker. What if I can't keep up? Members of hiking groups often have widely differing physical abilities. We pace our hikes such that most people who would consider going hiking in the first place would be able to reach the objective without physical hardship. If a participant decides that he/she is unable to reach the day's objective, one of the facilitators can stay with that person or escort him/her back to the trailhead.
6. What happens if the weather is really bad on the morning of the hike? Conditions in the mountains may be different than Calgary. It will be up to the facilitators to determine whether the hike that day will be cancelled or the destination will be changed. If you choose not to come or are concerned by the weather, please contact one of the facilitators by 7:30 AM at the cell numbers provided to you.
7. How much food should I bring? Bring a reasonable lunch for your particular nutritional needs, along with some snack items that can be used to boost your energy along the way. As well, bring at least one liter of water; more if you tend to get thirsty on exertion.
8. Are bears an issue? Many of our hikes are into areas where bears exist. However, there has never been a recorded incident of a bear encounter with groups of four or more people. In the unlikely event of a bear encounter, facilitators are equipped with bear spray to use as a last resort. As well, trail reports are checked for reports of recent wildlife activity.
9. Do we reimburse drivers for gas? If car-pooling, check with the driver. It is polite to share the cost of gas.
10. Why is there a limit to the number of participants on any given hike? As an ACMG Guide, I operate under land access permits for Kananaskis Country and the Mountain National Parks. These permits have regulations around the numbers that may go on commercially guided hikes. The limits are 12 for National parks and 13 for most trails in K-Country.
11. Do I have to carry a pack? Yes. You will need to bring along food, water, a rain jacket and anything else from the equipment list that you think will be useful. The best way to carry these items is in a two-strap backpack.
12. Is it OK to hike in running shoes? Running shoes are the minimum acceptable kind of footwear. You will be much better off with a supportive shoe or boot with an aggressive sole for traction. Street shoes or floppy runners are recipes for ankle injuries.
13. Do the facilitators like chocolate? Yes!!!!!!
